*In compliance with the FLSA, non-exempt positions are paid hourly as opposed to being salaried. Annual compensation would depend upon the number of hours, including overtime hours, a specific individual worked during the year. As a general rule, these positions are expected to average approximately 2080 regularly scheduled hours. As an exception, firefighting positions would average approximately 2917 regularly scheduled hours in a year.

*In compliance with the FLSA, non-exempt positions are paid hourly as opposed to being salaried. Annual compensation would depend upon the number of hours, including overtime hours, a specific individual worked during the year. As a general rule, these positions are expected to average approximately 2080 regularly scheduled hours. As an exception, firefighting positions would average approximately 2917 regularly scheduled hours in a year.

*In compliance with the FLSA, non-exempt positions are paid hourly as opposed to being salaried. Annual compensation would depend upon the number of hours, including overtime hours, a specific individual worked during the year. As a general rule, these positions are expected to average approximately 2080 regularly scheduled hours. As an exception, firefighting positions would average approximately 2917 regularly scheduled hours in a year.

*In compliance with the FLSA, non-exempt positions are paid hourly as opposed to being salaried. Annual compensation would depend upon the number of hours, including overtime hours, a specific individual worked during the year. As a general rule, these positions are expected to average approximately 2080 regularly scheduled hours. As an exception, firefighting positions would average approximately 2917 regularly scheduled hours in a year.

*In compliance with the FLSA, non-exempt positions are paid hourly as opposed to being salaried. Annual compensation would depend upon the number of hours, including overtime hours, a specific individual worked during the year. As a general rule, these positions are expected to average approximately 2080 regularly scheduled hours. As an exception, firefighting positions would average approximately 2917 regularly scheduled hours in a year.

*In compliance with the FLSA, non-exempt positions are paid hourly as opposed to being salaried. Annual compensation would depend upon the number of hours, including overtime hours, a specific individual worked during the year. As a general rule, these positions are expected to average approximately 2080 regularly scheduled hours. As an exception, firefighting positions would average approximately 2917 regularly scheduled hours in a year.
